

THE ROLE OF A TRUE MASTER

The first sign of spiritual arousal is the desire to find a true Master who can initiate you into the cosmic mysteries of the melodious Sound Current.

It must be clearly understood that the MasterPath deals exclusively with the attainment of your own Mastership, and the Path by which this august goal is to be achieved is located within your very own inner cosmology. However, the Path is yet unknown and can be treacherous if one travels alone, and so the Master is present to point the way and guide the beginning traveler. He does this through precept and loving example, urging the disciple to compare and supplant one's lesser mental atmosphere with the principles of one's own innate spirituality.

The true Master has the task of showing the seeker how to rend the veil between the outside and inside worlds; He shows the student how to successfully center oneself within the third eye, which is the gateway to all spiritual liberation; He stands by to protect and serve the spiritual interests of each and every student under His tutelage, constantly urging the individual soul to be responsible for one's own creations, whether limited or unlimited. However, the Outer Master is only essential until the student, through one's own volition, can directly commune with his or her own innate spiritual essence within.

Soul's divine journey to its emancipation is an unparalleled experience. The Master has great compassion for those who feel they can do it alone, and also for those who think that someone else is going to do it for them. Both have part of the truth, but both are in danger of being misled if they do not investigate the opposite point of view.
